DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

2. Claim 1 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being clearly anticipated by Seong et al. Seong et al. teaches a compound corresponding to a lipid compound represented by the formula (I) of the instant invention called dihexadecyl-glu-glu as a liposome-forming material for carrying insulin.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-5 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Seong et al in view of Rosenberg et al. (US Pat.- 5,370,877).

Seong et al. teaches a compound corresponding to a lipid compound represented by the formula (I) of the instant invention called dihexadecyl-glu-glu as a liposome-forming material for carrying insulin.

The claims differ from the reference by stating that the lipid compounds is part of a surface modifier or carrier. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time that the invention was made to extrapolate that the compound taught by Seong et al. could be used as a surface modifier or carrier.

US'877 discloses a that compound very similar to the dihexadecyl-glu-glu described by Seong et al. is suitable for use in an active substance carrier system (see col. 1, line 18 to col. 2, line 2). Therefore, an artisan could have easily used the dihexadecyl-glu-glu of Seong et al. as a liposome-forming material for carrying an active substance other than insulin.

Double Patenting

5. Claim 1 of this application conflict with claim 9 of Application No. 10/416,275. 37 CFR 1.78(b) provides that when two or more applications filed by the same applicant contain conflicting claims, elimination of such claims from all but one application may be required in the absence of good and sufficient reason for their retention during pendency in more than one application. Applicant is required to either cancel the conflicting claims from all but one application or maintain a clear line of demarcation between the applications. See MPEP § 822.

Art Unit: 1621

6. A rejection based on double patenting of the "same invention" type finds its support in the language of 35 U.S.C. 101 which states that "whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process ... may obtain a patent therefor ..." (Emphasis added). Thus, the term "same invention," in this context, means an invention drawn to identical subject matter. See Miller v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 151 U.S. 186 (1894); In re Ockert, 245 F.2d 467, 114 USPQ 330 (CCPA 1957); and In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970).

A statutory type (35 U.S.C. 101) double patenting rejection can be overcome by canceling or amending the conflicting claims so they are no longer coextensive in scope. The filing of a terminal disclaimer cannot overcome a double patenting rejection based upon 35 U.S.C. 101.

Claim 1 provisionally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claim 9 of copending Application No. 10/416,275. This is a provisional double patenting rejection since the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.
